of agriculture. And, it is a very legitimate concern. This is the concern which I had also expressed, when I was replying to that supplementary of the hon. Member, that in fixing the import duties, we have to keep in mind the factor of domestic production; and I would like to assure the hon. Member, Ramoowaliaji, that there is no question of blind imports; the imports are already permissible because we have removed the quantitative restrictions. The last of the trade barriers is gone. It is only a question now of fixing the import tariff and we have brought down the import tariff from 25 per cent to 15 per cent. We will continue to watch the imports of these items, and see what is happening; as, indeed, Sir, the Commerce Ministry is watching the import of 300 sensitive items regularly. They are monitoring the imports, and we have taken other steps in this Budget to make sure that unrestricted imports do not take place, that we have the safeguard mechanism, that we have the anti-dumping mechanism in order to be able to tackle the problem. So the Government will continue to be very, very cautious with regard to imports. Despite liberalisation, we will continue to watch over the interests of the Indian industry and take only such steps which would harmonise the interests of the consumer and the interests of the Indian industry. That is the general approach and I would like to reiterate it. MR. CHAIRMAN: Question Hour is over.
